Patent holders create first and only hydro-automatic window washing system. No Electricity! No Labor!

The patent holders have finally created an effective window washing system that permanently fits commercial and residential windows, skylights and solar panels. KLEARVIEW'S Hydro-Automatic window washing system is a completely non-electric system that slowly travels up and down the exterior of a window; rinsing, scrubbing and squeegeeing the surface clean. Power for the system is supplied solely by existing water pressure, further simplifying the design and completely eliminating all of the hazards of using electricity as a power source.

The current methods of window cleaning involve the continuing expense of window washing services that are not only costly and intermittent, but also life threatening. The IWCA reports that the majority of fatal accidents occur when a window washer falls from an external sill, ledge or ladder. The KlearvieW system will completely eliminate the need to wash exterior windows by hand.

With the costs a professional window service charges it's prohibitive to wash your windows more than two to three times per year resulting in a dirty window for the majority of the time.

KLEARVIEW utilizes plastics for manufacturing allowing the system to be easily field fitted to almost any window, skylight or solar panel.

The systems plastic construction also provides extremely long product life and resistance to diverse weather conditions. Systems can be automatically controlled via the web or a programmable remote. This means that washing your windows will now be literally as easy as pressing a button.

KLEARVIEW'S marketing opportunity is potentially limitless due to inevitable installations of hundreds of millions of KLEARVIEW systems in new and existing homes / buildings containing windows difficult and/or hazardous to wash manually. Our goal is to find and formulate an agreement with a company and/or investor(s) that possess the financial, production, marketing and sales strength to take this product to market and make it a global success.
